About This Game

After what must have been a wild party, Security Personnel H wakes up in the Holding Bay, the deepest areas of the secret underground base X-42, where he and his family lives and works.

He receives a rude awakening from an unfamiliar and facetious administrator called LARANK, the self-professed VOICE of TRUTH that does the base announcements and who has the desperate need of a CAWFEE. Informing H in a rather round-about fashion, LARANK tells him that the dangerous creatures the facility was housing have escaped and are wreaking havoc!

Concerned for his family, his work, and because he can't find anyone else around, H has to rely on Larank as he moves through the now-hostile base, searching for survivors and hanging onto the hope that his family have somehow been spared.

I asked if your evidentially lily-livered self got handed a shandy then conked out at the first whiff of it. You know you should'a been on patrol like two hours ago.

Such a fun game, tons of secrets and replay value...Everything about this game is charming and thought out and an impressive first release from this dev who I'll be keeping an eye out for their future releases. So much love and effort went into this game and you can tell, a true gem. The only problem I had was in the underwater area the game slowed down immensely and when I reached the second or third underwater checkpoint the spinning Loading/Saving "H" remained in the upper right-hand corner of the screen and the game appeared to slow down even further at that point. However I'm guessing that this isn't a common problem since I haven't seen mention of it yet. But even with this temporary annoyance I still highly recommend the game.
